1. To supplement the information provided by the other two methods, the authors used a third method to estimate the effect of the intervention on the prevalence of the disease. This method involved the use of a questionnaire to collect data on the prevalence of the disease in the community. The questionnaire was distributed to all the households in the community and was completed by the head of the household. The questionnaire asked for information on the age, sex, and occupation of the household members, as well as the prevalence of the disease in the household. The data from the questionnaire were used to estimate the prevalence of the disease in the community. The results of the questionnaire were compared with the results of the other two methods to assess the validity of the questionnaire method.
